Reason for Review

This speech-language review was completed on 2026-10-06 as part of the reevaluation scope identified in the reevaluation plan. The purpose is to determine whether a separate speech-language educational need is present. This review is limited to the speech-language domain.

Communication Observations

Caleb participated in conversational and structured language tasks during the review. Speech intelligibility is adequate for classroom participation. Receptive and expressive language observed during the review are broadly functional for classroom communication. No speech-language impairment is diagnosed in this report.

Educational Interpretation

Speech intelligibility is adequate for classroom participation. Receptive and expressive language observed during this review are broadly functional for classroom communication. No separate speech-language educational need is identified from this review. The documented reading comprehension concern remains an educational issue outside the speech-language domain. This review does not determine whether the student meets special education eligibility criteria.

The documented reading concern for Caleb Nguyen is not treated as resolved by this review. A speech-language review does not determine whether a reading disability is present.

Recommendation

No speech-language service is recommended. Continue to address the documented reading concern through the educational reevaluation process.

This report does not determine special education eligibility.
