Evaluation Evidence Reviewed

- [X] Psychoeducational Reevaluation - 2026-03-04
- [X] Speech-Language Review - 2026-03-11
- [X] Review of existing educational records
- [X] Teacher and parent information recorded in the evaluations

The team determined that Jordan continues to meet eligibility criteria for Specific Learning Disability (SLD) - Listening Comprehension.

Eligibility category is unchanged. Primary educational need remains following spoken directions. This determination does not identify ADHD, a working-memory disorder, or a language impairment.

Summary of Relevant Evidence

Psychoeducational evidence documents setting-specific difficulty with lengthy spoken directions during individual testing, together with teacher and parent reports that differ by context. Overall reasoning performance was described as within the expected range for age. Speech-language evidence documents intelligible conversational speech, accurate two-step directions in a quiet one-to-one setting, decreased accuracy for three or more steps presented once, and structured language performance within the expected range on structured tasks.

The speech-language review does not recommend direct speech-language services. That recommendation is not a finding that there is no communication-related educational need in the classroom.
